This Week in News

Updated 31 min ago

Hello! It's Rob Burgess, News Editor, back with you again this Wednesday. As I mentioned last week, I just got done with a great interview with former Indianapolis Mayor Greg Ballard. He stopped by the NUVO office this week for some photos and to discuss his new book, Less Oil or More Caskets: The National Security Argument for Moving Away From Oil. It was a really fascinating discussion and we'll be sharing it with you next week in our print edition and online.

I also wanted to highlight a new partnership we just entered into with Chalkbeat. If you're not familiar with it, Chalkbeat is a nonprofit news organization whose mission is defined as covering "the effort to improve schools for all children, especially those who have historically lacked access to a quality education."

If you've been paying attention the last week or two you'll notice we've begun republishing a few of their stories related to IPS. We're very excited about this new venture because it allows us to cover an area we've been lacking in for some time now. Let us know what you think!

I'm headed to Philadelphia for a Journalism conference this week, but on Monday, I'm back to the Statehouse for Military and Veterans Legislative Day. Is there a particular topic relating to veterans and the military you think I should focus on? Or, even better, does your area of expertise allow you to assist us with these types of stories in the future? If so, please let us know. A great way to do that is through our City Committee page. We've begun voting on our initial round of story ideas, but there's still plenty of time to submit your own. <https://www.nuvo.net/citycommittee/>

Thanks again for subscribing to this newsletter. I look forward to hearing from you!

Senate Bill 255 Could Be Cultural Boost

A bill pending in the Indiana legislature would provide a means for cultural arts districts to capture tax revenue in order to boost cultural and economic development.

Rob Swift Reflects on Decades of DJing

When Rob Swift first started spinning back in the early '90s, it wasn't so easy to become a DJ. We talk with Swift about the evolution of DJing ahead of his visit to Patron Saint in Indy this week, performing a special two-hour set dedicated to golden era hip-hop. Read more

Beer Buzz: Local Wins At Army Beer Wars

Five Indiana craft breweries took home Top honors at the 2019 Army Beer Competition. In a field of 144 participating breweries nationwide, The Tap was named #2 overall winner. Read more
